

Working for Youth Award

Emma Dolfing

Emma leads a group of around 20 young people in drama and film related activities teaching them skills in these areas. She has a great ability to motivate, engage and positively influence others.

She has completed short film which promoted the environmental sustainability of the paua population at Tauroa point near Ahipara. Environmental education is an identified need for that community. Emma has also directed numerous drama productions including some with a charity focus in which she has raised funds for young people with cancer in the Te Hiku community. Emma also promoted and supported “Shave for a Cure”.

“She is a fabulous young person who is incredibly organised and passionate about performance in all its aspects.”
